7.0 PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT

7.1 PERFORMANCE POLICY

Kampala International University recognizes performance management as a prerequisite for improvement of individual and University performance. Performance Management in KIU is intended to:

- i. Ensure that all staff contribute to the mandate and strategic objectives of KIU;
- ii. Create a performance management culture;
- iii. Keep staff informed of the areas where improvements are required;
- iv. Identify the means by which those improvements can be achieved;
- v. Assess the overall performance of staff; and
- vi. Guide administrative decisions, including but not limited to, confirmation in appointment, renewal of contract, promotion, and human resource development.

The Guidelines are intended to assist all stakeholders in the performance management process and promoting consistency in the general application of the Performance Management System, as well as uniformity in the interpretation and evaluation of performance appraisal criteria.

Performance management in KIU follows a three step process: performance planning (or performance agreement), performance monitoring, and performance evaluation or appraisal. These steps are informed by the following philosophical underpinnings:

- i. Planning and performance management is a two way process involving the supervisee and supervisor.
- ii. Appraisal of performance must be based on objective, job-related criteria developed and understood in advance by both the appraiser and appraisee.
- iii. The appraisal of job performance is based on observable and measurable job behaviors and not on personality or other subjective factors.
- iv. Setting objectives for future performance growth is as important as appraising performance Performance management shall be guided by key performance indicators as determined by the University.

7.2 ROLES OF STAKEHOLDERS IN THE PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

Effective performance management rests upon clarifying roles and responsibilities of different stakeholders in the performance management process. Below are the different stakeholders and their respective roles as far as performance management in KIU is concerned:

Vice Chancellor

Responsible for the institutionalization of performance Management in KIU and ensuring that a strategic annual work plan is developed and cascaded to various levels in the University.

Deputy Vice Chancellors

The Deputy Vice Chancellors are the overall supervisors for the implementation of the key performance management systems in the directorates and units they are responsible for in the University.

Director of Human Resources

- i. Coordinate development of institution and directorate work plans
- ii. Co-ordinates implementation of the performance management system within KIU
- iii. Give guidance to staff on the performance management system
- iv. Ensure that deadlines for handling each step of the performance management process are met.

Other Directors, Heads of Departments

- Ensure that each jobholder is aware of KIU's/Directorate's/Departmental/Sectional work plan and objectives.
- Ensure development of individual work plans and setting of performance targets in the department / section.
- Ensure compliance with set time frames in the performance management process
- Ensure that each job holder knows and understands what he/she is accountable for and what needs to be done to succeed
- Monitor progress and manage the appraisee's performance by regularly providing feedback and communicating with the appraisee
- Ensure that supervisees prepare individual annual work plans that are aligned with the annual strategic work plan and mandate of KIU
- Request and receive reports from supervisees at the specified timelines
- Ensure that resources as indicated in the supervisee's individual work plan are provided
- Coach and mentor supervisees as and when necessary
- Carry out annual appraisal of supervisees' performance
- Report on training needs of all supervisees to the Directorate of Human Resources

Individual Employees

- Request for departmental work plan and objectives from the supervisor to be able to develop an individual work plan
- Discuss departmental work plan with supervisor
- Develop an individual work plan
- Indicate resources required to implement the individual work plan and discuss them with the supervisor
- Give regular feedback on his/her performance to the supervisor and point out any problems being encountered.

- Prepare performance reports and avail them to the supervisor as and when they are required.

7.3 APPRAISAL INSTRUMENT

Appraisal shall be conducted using specifically designed instruments for each category of staff/designation. (See Annex Form J, Reference 7.3)

7.4 APPRAISAL INTERVALS

Periodical appraisal reports shall constitute an essential record on every employee of the University and therefore all members of staff shall be appraised at least once a year (April) but the supervisor may appraise an employee as and when necessary.

7.5 PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT CYCLE

Performance planning

Every academic year, the University Council shall develop a strategic annual work plan using the corporate strategic plan. The annual work plan should clearly define key result areas (KRAs), key performance indicators (KPIs), targets (planned levels of performance), and outline required resources.

University management shall communicate plans to lower levels to undergo the same planning process. After management has completed the planning process, supervisors shall complete the process with individual members of their teams by agreeing on key deliverables, setting targets and defining key performance indicators, and specifying resource requirements.

Individual performance plan (performance agreement) specifies the expectations. It MUST stipulate, among others, outputs (key results), targets, performance indicators and the necessary resources. Performance planning for individuals should be undertaken in the month of April of every year for confirmed staff and at the commencement of employment for new employees and should be consistent with KIU's annual work plan as follows:

- i. Agreeing on the key result areas for each job holder during the performance appraisal period
- ii. Setting performance Targets (planned performance for each key result area
- iii. Formulation of performance indicators. For each target, appropriate qualitative and quantitative performance indicators should be developed. Performance indicators allow recognition or verification when targets/objectives have been successfully accomplished.

Performance monitoring

In addition to the continuous monitoring of performance, the appraiser shall organize a mid-term/progress review of performance in December of each year for all confirmed staff and half-way the assessment period for staff serving on probation.

The purpose of the mid-term performance review is to accord both the appraiser and appraisee the opportunity to jointly review the progress made by the appraisee in accomplishing performance targets agreed upon at the beginning of the performance management period. It also provides the appraiser and appraisee with an opportunity to gauge progress towards achievement of targets and can trigger remedial action. The appraiser must give at least a week's notice to the appraisee specifying the date, time and place of the meeting.

End of cycle review/Annual Performance appraisal

At the end of the annual performance evaluation period (June of every year), using the standard performance appraisal tool, work plan and performance criteria appropriate for the position as the basis for the discussion, evaluation meetings will be scheduled between employee and supervisor in accordance with the evaluation cycle. Employees are encouraged to be prepared for evaluation sessions with self- evaluations (either formally using the evaluation tool to conduct a self-appraisal or informally making notes of areas that the employee would like to discuss with the supervisor).

The employee should complete a self-evaluation before discussing the Supervisor's evaluation. The supervisor and staff member provide their own narrative description of the staff member's performance for each major goal/task. Differences are discussed and strategies developed to ensure that work goals/tasks are achieved. The Supervisor should integrate the input of the employee in completing the evaluation, while the employee should be prepared to accept constructive appraisal. The employee's written comments should incorporate issues such as how performance could be improved, and what factors hinder good performance. Both parties sign and date the performance form.

The appraisal process will consider two (2) key areas of performance with weights assigned to them:

Performance Area	Weight
Performance Targets	70%
Core Competences	30%

Each performance target and core competence will be scored using the rating scale provided in the appraisal form as follows;

- i. Exceeds expectations (4) - Has met all aspects of the general job description or specific task and has exceeded in most respects. Has made outstanding contributions to the Institution in performance of his or her duties.
- ii. Meets Expectations (3) - Has met basic competence requirements as set forth within time frame with efficiency and initiative. Has fully accomplished performance expectations as agreed upon with supervisor.
- iii. Below Expectations (2) - Has performed below the competence requirements. Employee had to be prompted, and required more than normal input from the supervisor.
- iv. Unacceptable performance (1) - Individual has completely failed to meet institution performance expectations. Doubt exists about individual's capability, discipline, and initiative to perform tasks. Work performance is totally unacceptable.

7.6 PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT PLAN

- i. Performance improvement plans should be designed to address cases of unsatisfactory performance. The performance improvement plan may be an outcome of performance appraisal or may be developed as soon as a supervisor notices unsatisfactory performance.
- ii. The period an employee shall be subjected to a performance improvement plan (PIP) shall not exceed six months (6)
- iii. Supervisors should initiate action as soon as they notice that performance of an employee is below expectation and should not wait until the time for performance appraisal. Supervisors who notice or suspect that an employee is performing poorly should, at the earliest opportunity, arrange a meeting with the employee concerned.
- iv. The purpose of the meeting should be to:
 - o Inform the employee that his/her work does not meet the required performance standards or expectations;

- Explain to the employee the performance standard(s) required
 - Determine the reasons for the poor work performance; and
 - Determine the manner in which poor work performance should be addressed including practical steps that need to be taken by both parties.
- v) The following steps are helpful in designing a performance improvement plan

(i) Initial meeting

The supervisor to discuss with the employee the reasons why his/her performance is not meeting the required standards. The standards expected from the employee may be derived from a job description, norms or standards of KIU. Illustrate this by using examples which may include, but not limited to, the following situations:

- Where the employee did not meet deadlines;
- Cases where the employee's work was of poor quality; and
- Where the employee's work was not done at all, etc.

Allow the employee to respond to the situations presented on him/her

ii. Follow Up Meeting

A number of regular follow up meetings maybe necessary to track the employee's performance. These meetings maybe scheduled for once a month or as regular as the supervisor may deem appropriate. How often the supervisor conducts meetings will depend on the seriousness of the work performance, the ability of the employee to improve, the time required to improve, the nature of remedial steps required as well as the employee's tasks. Supervisors should make it clear to the employee during the course of follow up meetings whether performance is improving or not.

The performance of the employee may or may not improve during the period he/she is on a performance improvement plan:

- iii. If the employee's performance does not improve during the time allocated, the supervisor should arrange a final meeting with the employee. The purpose of this meeting is to give the employee a written report on the outcomes of the process followed so far; and to map out strategies for improving performance.

In some cases, the organisation may decide to dismiss an employee on account misconduct/inefficiency stemming from continued poor performance. This should be regarded as a last resort. All appropriate remedies must be exhausted and the employee's work performance must not have improved to the extent of meeting the required standards

7.7 PERFORMANCE APPRAISAL DISPUTE

- i. An employee with a grievance about the appraisal process shall present it to the Director Human Resources in writing
- ii. Where an employee has a grievance about the appraisal process that involves the Director Human Resources, they shall present it in writing to the DVC (F&A)
- iii. The Director Human Resources, after consultation with the complainant's Head of Department/Unit shall handle the grievance and conclude it or present it to an ad hoc Grievance committee chaired by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (F& A) with a membership of not less than five.
